

Cold North Wind

by Rick Lang

Empty hallways, empty rooms
Once filled with laughter are now filled with gloom
An unfaithful lover is gone again
She left town tonight...on the cold north wind

Endless teardrops fall down like rain
This troubled heart is filled with pain
Off in the distance I can hear again
The chilling sound of the cold north wind

Across the mountains the wind blows cold
It chills the body and shakes the soul
Alone at midnight without a friend
Just the lonesome sound of the cold north wind

Broken dreams and broken vows
Like shattered glass lay on the ground
This restless feeling just never ends
Like the haunting sound of the cold north wind
